Changing faces

In this newsletter we say goodbye to Sharon Darwell, who has coordinated the Win programme for several years. Her dedication to the development of WIN whilst on placement with the Teaching Public Health Network (TPHN) has been instrumental to its success. Sharon returns to a new role and exciting role at NHS Wakefield. We would like to take this opportunity to thank Sharon for all her hard work and to wish her well for the future.

We also extend a warm welcome to Kate Drummond, who has taken up the post of Programme Delivery Manager at TPHN. Her role involves developing the WIN programme with the support of Laura Jarvis, Project Officer. Kate will also be supporting the development of the Regional Advanced CPD Programme. For more information look out for the TPHN newsletter or visit www.yhtphn.co.uk.

Snippets...

- WIN is now running in North Lincolnshire – a big thank you to everyone involved.
- The YHTPHN website is full of information for facilitators and participants www.yhtphn.co.uk/win
- YHTPHN presented a WIN poster at the UKPHA Conference in Brighton. The poster gained much attention from delegates and a number of regions are now looking replicate the Yorkshire and Humber model.

Programme Accreditation

We have used the National Open College Network to offer participants free accreditation for the course over the past year. Participants have been able to gain credits for their learning at levels 1, 2 and 3. This has worked well but we are constantly trying to improve our programme and are currently exploring accreditation options that are linked to the National Qualifications Framework (NQF).

We will of course be looking to consult with regional colleagues throughout the process to ensure that we find the best option for participants, facilitators and employers. Keep an eye out for further communications.

Sheffield Hallam University: Work-Based Learning Module

SHU are currently developing the work-based learning module and we are taking registrations for it now. This will be based on the programme and will offer participants the chance to attain credits at undergraduate and post graduate levels. More information regarding this will be available shortly.
